Contributions to Mary Jewell Kidney Fund still disappointing

Contributions to the Mary Jewell Artificial Kidney Fund, a campaign launched by The Recorder two weeks ago to raise directly needed funds to maintain the life of Mrs. Mary Jewell in a life-sustaining home dialysis program, picked up somewhat this week but is still running behind at a disappointing pace.

To date, a little more than $700 in contributions have been given, but Mrs. Jewell needs much, much more. Therefore, an urgent appeal is being issued to clubs and various church groups to initiate fund-raising drives. No contribution is too small. The cost of the first year of the dialysis program is estimated at $15,000 to $18,000 thus, we are far from our goal in aiding Mrs. Jewell in a program which is keeping her alive.

Mrs. Jewell, the mother of nine, will be using the machine at home; therefore, the cost of the second and succeeding years will be reduced to $3,000 to $5,000 -- still an astronomical figure to even the average family.

Nixon to Hatcher: no revenue cuts

GARY - President Richard Nixon guaranteed Gary Mayor Richard G. Hatcher his city wouldn't get any less federal money under the President's revenue-sharing plan. Hatcher's office reported the mayor was encouraged after the meeting with the President and others about the revenue-sharing promise and these other commitments:

"Civil rights requirements for grants receiving federal grants now would be retained under revenue-sharing."

"The administration is willing to discuss the revenue sharing plan at any meeting of state and local officials set up by Hatcher or others."

Hatcher told his office the meeting was "informative and helpful," but said he retained certain reservations about the Nixon administration's proposal.

The mayor was invited to the White House briefing last week, after he was critical of the revenue-sharing plan in a speech to a National Urban Coalition conference near Washington.

The White House meeting lasted three hours and Nixon attended most of the time, city hall said.

Hatcher also relayed these other details of the President's plan:

"The $5 billion proposed

Racist America stalling 'second phase' of rights drive, declares IREBA speaker

DISCUSSION IN REAL ESTATE: Officers of the Indianapolis Real Estate Brokers Association discuss issues with H. M. Michaux, Jr., (seated left) Durham, N.C., insurance and real estate broker, who was guest speaker at the annual dinner meeting of the group last weekend. The occasion was a reception for Michaux at the Epicurean Club, 3210 Sutherland. Left to right are James Mullins, VA appraiser and a member of the board of IREBA; Michaux, Albert Booth, IREBA president; Mrs. Nellie Grant, financial secretary, and James Buchanan, vice-president. (Recorder photo by Jim Burres)

A noted insurance and real estate broker blasted whites for not recognizing the "second phase--the realization of equality--of the civil rights movement," resulting in massive frustrations among blacks, and warned that black citizens "will no longer live supinely in a wretched past."

H. M. Michaux Jr., also a practicing attorney from Durham, N. C., addressed the 19th annual installation banquet of the Indianapolis Real Estate Brokers Association, Inc., Saturday night at the Foster Motor Lodge.

Speaking before the IREBA

for the second time, he charged that America "has been sincere and even enthused in welcoming some change... but too quickly apathy and disinterest rise to the surface when the next logical steps are to be taken."

"The price of progress would have been high enough at the best of times, but we are

High court shifts right; Burger, Blackmun leading

WASHINGTON - The Supreme Court as midpoint in the 1970-71 term is moving right, away from the liberalism of the Warren years and toward the conservatism of President Nixon.

The trend is not entirely uniform. Women have won some measure of equal job rights and just last week the court lifted the shadow of liberal judgments from newspapers that delve into the personal backgrounds of political candidates.

But Mr. Nixon could accelerate the rightward move if a vacancy occurs while he is in the White House.

Some presidents have been disappointed with the men they put on the court. Theodore Roosevelt was astonished at the liberalism of Oliver Wendell Holmes and Dwight D. Eisenhower was equally surprised by Earl Warren. Mr. Nixon is keeping his own counsel, but it would be hard to imagine him pleased with the way Chief Justice Warren Burger and Justice Harry A. Blackmun have turned out.

Campaigning for the presidency in 1968, Mr. Nixon

Federal judge denies delay in Ernie P's 'narco' trial

The U.S. Federal Court hiked the bail bonds and denied another delay in the trial of Ernest (Ernie P) Perry and his former wife, Constance, on narcotics charges.

The 48-year-old Perry and his ex-wife have had several continuances from the court as the result of switching attorneys, but when Miss Catherine Barton, the latest of new lawyers for the Perry, asked for a delay, Judge Gale J. Holder denied the request.

Judge Holder noted that Perry's bond was posted last year by the United Bonding and Insurance Company, which is not presently authorized to write bonds in Federal courts.

He required Perry to post an additional $25,000 bond through another company, and released a property owner from the $10,000 bond he posted for Perry's former wife and required her to post a new bond of $15,000. Both ac-

Warden, guards and inmates are subpoenaed

U.S. Attorney Stanley B. Miller confirmed Wednesday that a Federal grand jury is conducting an investigation of the 1969 protest demonstration at the Indiana Reformatory in which two inmates lost their lives and 46 others were wounded when the group was fired upon by reformatory guards.

The Federal investigation centers around the circumstances surrounding the disturbance during which inmates staged a protest inside an enclosed area in the prison yard.

A howl went up in all quarters of the state after the 1969 uprising when prisoners at the Pendleton reformatory staged the uprising to protest, what they termed as inhumane living and racial conditions at the institution.

At the time of the uprising, about 200 inmates had staged

Alleged dope pusher victim in 2nd killing

Police records this week listed two persons, one an alleged dope pusher, found shot to death on the steps of his Eastside apartment with more than $1,300 in cash and travelers checks on his person, and the other a young Eastside housewife, shot and fatally wounded during a domestic quarrel--as the year's latest two murder victims.

Being held on murder charges are a 26-year-old suspected narcotics addict and a 25-year-old man who originally told police homicide detectives that he had caught his wife in a compromising position in the couple's home with a member of the Indianapolis Police Department.

Early last Wednesday evening, police answering a call from a poolroom at 32nd and Martindale, were met by Wilbur Douglas, 23, of 2283 Sheldon, who informed them that he had just shot his wife after catching her in their bedroom with a policeman.

Douglas led officers to his home where officers found the victim, Mrs. Katherine Douglas, 21, dying on the floor of the couple's first-floor bedroom with a single bullet wound just above her right eye.

She died about one hour later in the emergency ward at Marion County General Hospital.

Questioned after the shooting, Douglas said he had come home, walked into the bedroom

Officials of black medical unit attack Red Cross disaster aid

Officials of the nation's major black medical association this week charged the American Red Cross with discriminatory practices in the way it handled disaster relief in some Mississippi communities following the Feb. 21 tornadoes there.

Dr. Andrew Thomas, secretary of the National Medical Association's House of Delegates, said the Red Cross gates, said the Red Cross and Civil Defense forces provided services to a white section of Inverness hit by a tornado but little or no help was available in nearby black rural communities.

William C. Lucey, executive director of the Mid-American chapter of the Red Cross, denied the charge. He said a lack of communications and local facilities prevented the Red Cross and other agencies from learning where some of the isolated pockets of destruction were.

He said some of the rural areas hit in Pugh and Belzonia, black areas about 15 miles from Inverness, had no telephones, no government charged "a majority of one had thrown up a barred wire of legalisms to protect criminal defendants."

ficer he claimed he had caught in his home.

According to Sgt. Churchill, however, an investigation into the officers' whereabouts at the time of the shooting revealed that the policeman named by Douglas was on duty at Butler Fieldhouse during the Indianapolis Sectional Tournament at the time the shooting took place.

Douglas had claimed that he fired one shot at the officer as he fled out the door before sending the fatal bullet tearing into his wife's brain.

"We even have taped recorded statements from the victim's brother swearing that Douglas and his wife were the only two persons in the bedroom at the time of the shooting," Sgt. Churchill told The Recorder this week.

He added that the officer had admitted being at the Douglas home early on the morning of the shooting.

"Evidently the officer had known the victim and she had called him about 9:00 a.m. that morning and said that she and her husband had been having domestic difficulties and that he had threatened her with a knife," the homicide detective related.

"From our investigation we learned that the officer went to the Douglas home and advised Douglas of the possible consequences involved if he were to cut his wife before leaving the house.

"It seems that Douglas also left the house and returned shortly before 5 p.m. that evening and told Mrs. Douglas that he wanted to talk to her."

Witnesses told the detectives that the victim accompanied her husband into the bedroom and that they had been in the room just a few minutes before the fatal shot was fired.

"According to the statements taken from the witnesses," Sgt. Churchill related, "Douglas then ran from the bedroom and out of the house."

Responding to the shot the witnesses found Mrs. Douglas mortally wounded on the floor of the bedroom.

Douglas was said to have gone to the poolroom, laid a pistol, believed to have been the murder weapon on a counter and asked, "someone call the police because I've just shot my wife."

The murder weapon was not recovered, however, and police believe that someone in the poolroom picked it up and left before officers arrived at the scene.

In the second slaying, officers last Saturday night answering a radio report of a "man shot" found Walter Higgins, 42, 1227 N. Park, dead on the second-floor landing of the converted Eastside apartment building.

Police described Higgins, an ex-convict, as a relative newcomer in the city's mushrooming narcotics racket.

On Tuesday night homicide detectives arrested a man they described as a known narcotics usher on a first degree murder charge in connection with Higgins' death.

Being held on the murder charge is Walter E. Crawford, 26, 2810 Central.

Crawford was arrested when he came to police headquarters Tuesday night asking "why the police have been looking for me."

Det. Sgt. Krammer told The Recorder Wednesday that Crawford had been identified by at least one witness as the man who had been seen bending over Higgins' body on the second-floor landing. Recovered from the victims body was $229.65 in cash and $1,130 in travelers checks.

Detectives theorize that the killer must have been scared off by other residents of the building who had heard the shot before he could complete a search of Higgins' pockets.

The detectives said they believe that robbery was the motive behind the shooting. "We've got pretty good information that Higgins took delivery of 223 pills (capsules of heroin) early on the morning of the shooting and the killer must have known the same thing," Krammer remarked.

(Narcotics dealers usually pay $4 each for the heroin capsules from their suppliers and retail the pills for $6 each.)

"We still aren't sure whether the killer was looking for narcotics or cash, but from what we've learned Higgins had sold all of his supply before the shooting," he continued.

Douglas was ordered held without bond in the county jail pending action by the Marion County Grand Jury after an appearance in municipal court last Thursday and the murder charge against Crawford was continued until March 12 when he appeared Wednesday in Municipal Court Room 10.

"Two copies are to be retained by the trustee (in the same manner as Form PR 2, medical aid) for his record of orders issued. If, this form may be printed in quadruplicate so that one copy may be filed . . . It (this) is the one requirement why chain stores and some neighborhood stores do not accept trustee's business in Center Township. It is necessary, therefore, that poor relief clients go to those stores where trustee food orders are accepted. There are no favored stores as implied by some nut wit."

"In 1968 Center Township had no available funds to pay for food supplied the poor by these neighborhood grocers. Unpaid claims totaled $200,000, more or less. The trustee also owed the food stamp program $81,000. The U. S. Department of Agriculture through its subsidiary, the Marion County Department of Public Welfare unceremoniously cut off Center Township from the food stamp program."

"It was obviously the hope of the director of the Marion County Department of Welfare that grocers would panic and follow his lead by terminating business with the Center Township Trustee, not these neighborhood grocers foresaw a chaotic disruption of our social order that they followed the astute decision of the Department of Welfare."

"Food stamps are used in Center Township as a supplement to and not as a replacement of the trustee's food order. When the trustee of Center Township determines that a poor relief client . . . has not the trustworthiness or ability to manage funds giving such a client food stamps would be contrary to his own welfare."

"All poor relief clients do not get food stamps for the simple reason that if poor relief clients are not eligible. There are extenuating circumstances created by some poor relief clients and by the food stamp program itself."

Testimony begins in R-70 kickback probe

The Marion County Grand Jury was scheduled to begin hearing testimony Wednesday in its investigation of alleged kickbacks involving Indianapolis Department of Metropolitan Development officials and contractors working on a Federally assisted urban renewal project.

Marion County Prosecutor Noble R. Percy ordered the investigation after one department official was fired and another suspended last week after David O. Meeker Jr., department director, said he had heard rumors of "under-the-table" dealings from other employees.

William Trunch, 63, 6029 Haverford, was asked to resign, while Clarence Beaven, 39, 3485 Birchwood, was suspended pending outcome of the investigation.

Trunch was supervisor of all R-70 rehabilitation, while Beaven, who is black, was a supervisor of four rehabilitation specialists working out of the R-70 project office at 30th and Eastern.

Percy said he plans to call numerous contractors to testify, and revealed he had been working on the case for a week and had conferred with Stanley Miller, U.S. Attorney for the Southern District of Indiana because "Federal tax dollars" were allegedly used.

Meeker said he had heard of alleged offers to some contractors to speed up paper work and payment schedules for a fee. However, he added that he does not believe these are widespread irregularities in the division.

"It appears this may have been going on for a number of months," Percy revealed. "There appears to have been a commission of a crime ... there may be other implications."

Beaven, an employee since February, 1968, was an $11,648-a-year supervisor, while Trunch was paid $13,468 to supervise all of the modernization in R-70.

Of the 31 contractors, 10 are black, but Meeker said he found no evidence individual contractors were given any preference in obtaining job contracts.

Trunch was discharged permanently because he failed to report the rumors, Meeker stated.

The renewal project calls for spending $8 million in Federal funds and $2 million in local money.

Under the terms of the project, residents of the area, located on the city's Northeast side, may qualify for a $3,500 Federal grant to improve their homes and may borrow up to $16,500 at three per cent interest.

The area is bounded by 25th and 30th streets, Keystone and the first alley west of Dearborn.

"Black Press Week" highlight four journalism workshops

Four regional journalism workshops for high school students will highlight "Black Press Week," marking the 14th anniversary of the founding of John B. Russell's "Freedom's Journal," first black newspaper in the United States.

Announcement of the workshops was made this week by John H. Sengstacke, president of the National Newspaper Publishers Association, and president and publisher of "The Chicago Daily Defender" and "The New Pittsburgh Courier," and other newspapers in the Sengstacke chain.

He said Frank L. Stanley, Sr., publisher of "The Louisville Defender," will coordinate the four workshops to be held in Baltimore, Atlanta, St. Louis, and San Francisco on Saturday, March 20, to climax "Black Press Week," March 14-20.

Editors of high school newspapers and other students interested in journalism are expected to attend the workshop nearest to them. Publishers, Mr. Sengstacke said, will assist in getting them there.

Howard H. Murphy, business manager of the Afro-American newspapers, is serving as chairman of the Baltimore workshop; John B. Smith of "The Atlanta Inquirer" has charge of the one in his city; N. A. Sweets of "The St. Louis American" will direct the activity in St. Louis; and William H. Lee of "The Sacramento Observer" is chairman of the San Francisco workshop.

Mr. Sengstacke explained that the workshops are designed to better acquaint students with the black press and its use of modern journalistic techniques. Hopefully, he added, some of the students will be inspired to become

Planned Parenthood Assn. launches $100,000 drive

A community-wide membership and education campaign was launched last week-end by the Planned Parenthood Assn. of Indianapolis, Inc. the chairman of the campaign, Mrs. Paul Buchanan announced. Thomas W. Binford, business and civic leader is the campaign leader.

The goal of the campaign is $100,000 expected to be raised during the months of April and May. The campaign or project has been endorsed categorically by Mayor Richard G. Lugar in a state ment on the demands of many citizens for constructive and responsible information on family planning.

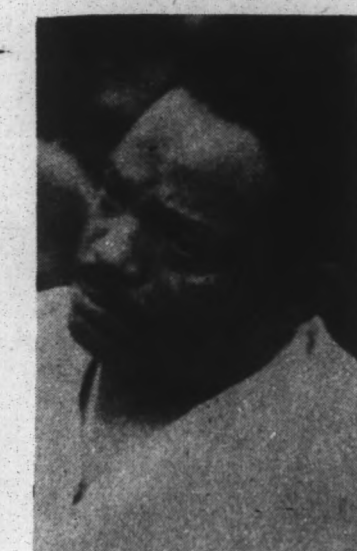

More than fifty campaigners, following the kick-off meeting began work in the campaign. The executive director, Mrs. Gordon McCallment noted that the organization now operates 13 clinics in Marion County, nine of these of the neighborhood type. However a definite need exists to reach more women, particularly those in the low and moderate income family brackets.

Dr. Joseph Thompson, director of the Indiana Family Planning Project at Indiana University Medical Center has observed that without Planned Parenthood there would be no family planning service programs in Indiana.

Dr. F. E. McAree, medical director of Planned Parenthood, observed that private agencies can deliver services to low income families far more effectively than government agencies. They both observed that every dollar contributed to Planned Parenthood is worth three dollars in service potential, due to matching grant stipulations of national programs. Information regarding contributions may be obtained by contact the organization, English Foundation - Building, 615 N. Alabama St., Room 108.

Who had most fun, members or guests of the Bandives

The Civilian Recreation Center at Fort Harrison was the scene of a "Mardi Gras Frolic" when the Bandives celebrated their 11th birthday.

The foyer projected an atmosphere of festivity with the balloons and colorful streamers. It was evident that a lot of planning went into the decorations. Gay dancing figures adorned the walls while the ceiling was decorated vividly with streamers and a multitude of parti-colored balloons at focus points.

Flowers of many hue found their way atop the piano and fill-ins for corners. The beauty of each table was enhanced by artistically made-up heads wearing assorted masks, chatoyant jewelry and varicolored hats on bright tablecloth with stately candles aglow.

One of the highlights of the evening was a salad bar composed of a variety of palatable and delectable salads. Music for the Frolic was paced by Jesse Rogers with his "silver tongue and magical patter."

Among the costumed hosting couples were Manchurian candidate of Chinatown and his lady, Cleopatra forsok Mark Aphony and was escorted by the Maharajah of Neverland.

A New Orleans Dandy resplendent in red coat stepped across the border and brought a female gaucho. A pakistar sultan wooed his favorite dancer while a pair of nomadic gypsies gilded in. An African king brought wife number one, and last but not least, a Mexican twosome wondered in.

Among the interesting and colorful guest were strange and familiar characters such as a monk who stepped out of his usual role and escorted a female pirate; an African queen and her escort. Cochise and Pocahontas, and a Roman couple whose fiddle was burned in Rome.

Best costume prizes were won by Mrs. Morton Goode and James Compton.

Members of the planning committee were John Hannah, chairman; Elizabeth Carter, Ruth Ross, and Tommie Anderson.

Members of the decoration committee were Hallie Carter, chairman; Elizabeth Hannah, and Alene Harrison. Aiding their wives were Dwight Carter and William Harrison.

Other members of Bandives are Allen and Ernestine Grundy, Russell and Marjorie Parker, Emogene Anderson, and Cecil Ross.

Bandives Club was founded by The Carters in 1960.

ELEGANTLY garbed in appropriate fashions were members of the popular Bandives Club who entertained guests recently at a "Mardi Gras Frolic" in celebration of their 11th birthday. ## Miss Anderson heads 'Celebration Black'

Miss Leslie Anderson, 19-year-old head of "Celebration Black" at Indiana University-Purdue University at Indianapolis, would like to see more blacks go to college.

"Celebration Black Week" is Sunday, March 7, through Saturday, March 13.

"There are lots of scholarships and funds for blacks at IU," she said. "Blacks should become more active in the workings of the school."

"I believe you have to talk to people on a one-to-one basis. I tell my friends I be-derson stated: "I don't like to sit back. I want to know what's going on and help make things happen."

Miss Anderson is assistant secretary of the IU-PUI Black Student Union. She also writes for the I.U. Campus Newspaper, serves on the Student Senate of the Downtown Campus and is a member of a committee called "Students for Solidarity."

The latter organization is drafting suggestions for an all-student constitution for IU-PUI which will include a bill of rights and a plan for funding student organizations and clubs.

Miss Anderson's ambition is to work in the inner-city in social work which she claims works for her.

"I get more out of it than I give," she said.

Already at 19 she has worked with Operation Breadbasket, was an officer in the Catholic Youth Organization and has worked on social programs of Holy Angels Catholic Church.

She was a catechist in a home for the aged where she became the godmother of a woman old enough to be her grandmother.

Miss Anderson enjoys working with Dignity Unlimited, an economic self-help home for boys, where she hopes to tutor.

"When I work with people I can't always get results immediately. But I don't get discouraged," she said. "I believe the little things will have long-reaching results."

A thousand "little things" have gone into the celebration of the Black week-long program planned by Miss Anderson and approximately 20 other black students at IU. They started working on the program in December and, according to Miss Anderson, are often on the phone as late as 2 a.m.

Besides all that, Miss Anderson is stage struck. She is minoring in speech and drama. The Ladywood High School graduate noted: "I like to interpret things. I feel I can do anything anyone else can - maybe not as well, but I can try."

Miss Anderson is the daughter of

Their recreation room was attractively decorated with cupid, hearts, balloons, and red and white streamers.

The business meeting was conducted by the newly elected president, Robert Williams, president of the Indiana State Conference of NAACP Branches and member of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity.

An enjoyable social hour followed and refreshments were artistically displayed and served.

The Creightons, known for their Hoosier Hospitality, and Verdel, known especially for her unusual desserts, climaxed the evening with a sweetheart dessert - "Flaming Cherry Jubilee." A good time was had by all.

Reading of poem is feature of service

The Mt. Paran Baptist Sunday Church School observed its annual day in the B.F. Farrell Fellowship Hall.

Guests were welcomed by Ray Ferguson. The theme, "Festival of the Trees," was repeated as a request from many members and friends. It was beautifully coordinated by Veanie Dawson, associate superintendent of the Sunday Church School.

She gave a resume of the approximately 20 trees displayed with by-products of the tree. Among the trees exhibited were the following: fig, almond, olive, Cedars of Lebanon, Palm, Rose of Sharon, oak, cherry, orange, banana, nut, apple, peach, pear, and plum. She gave a Biblical background of each tree.

Original poems on trees were given by Katherine Hughes and Ella Pope. "Trees" by Joyce Kilmer, was very beautifully sung by Toni Clark, accompanied by Fannie White.

Other musical numbers by special request were rendered by Lavenia Jacobs and Burnice Head, superintendent of the Sunday School, and the pastor's choir, directed by Barbara Wilson.

The Timothy Eunices and Lois Bible Class under the leadership of Inez Garner were in charge of the program, decorations, and refreshments.

The youth of the church played a very active part on the program. Scripture reading was by Sheila Short, followed by a prayer by Dolly Gresham. They also served as junior hostesses and were beautifully attired in long-formals serving refreshments along with the senior hostesses.

Mrs. Pope's meaningful poem follows: AND GOD GAVE US TREES When God made this wonderful world for us With its many priceless treasures One of His most precious gifts Whose worth cannot be measured

Are the many various kinds of trees Our needs to supply. Food and shelter are not the least of these I will name some others if time will allow.

There are trees that are beautiful to behold Trees to protect us from the heat and cold Trees for homes, furnishings and many other needs I could never enumerate the things that are made from trees.

Let us go back to the beginning and take a look. At what is said about trees, in the Holy Book.

In the Garden of Eden there were many trees To supply the needs of Adam and Eve.

In the midst of the garden was the tree of life There was the tree of knowledge, forbidden to Adam and his wife

We know the story of Adam and Eve's sin And how God sent His Son as a Redeemer of men. Who died on a Cross that was made from a tree To bring salvation to you and me. We can see what an important part trees play in our lives For a tree symbolizes Christianity, as each of us strives

For Eternal Life, when this life is done Where the Maker of trees will welcome us home.

Reader shares poem on 'The Black Man'

Although Negro History Week is over, it is always nice to run poems written by Recorder Subscribers. Therefore Mrs. Mildred Thompson of 947 E. Berry is sharing this poem with you. Another will appear in next week's paper.

THE BLACK
God made the black man just the same as others, He also means for him to progress and go further While there is love, truth and grace in his heart, Don't you forget God really does mean for him to be a part. He works from sunrise to the setting of dawy, God gave him the knowledge to till the soil of his farms, The black man helped to clear the rugged way, And God has been with him day by day.

He hasn't been Holy and righteous all the time, But still he always kept others in back of his mind Life has been a struggle for blacks here and there, So with God's given strength, we know He cares.

The black man works each day with a song in his heart, That some day, some way, life won't be so hard We must not give up beyond a shadow of a doubt, For we as black people long for a black man to cry out.

Give us our equal rights, and we will give you a song and not a fight, Just give us freedom, liberty and justice and God will shine the light God made all men just the way He saw fit, Some with knowledge and some without, some with no courage and no wits.

Life do hold problems for the black man, But at the end of God's long arms He does have a helping hand So as He walks by the river and looks over the great Just fight on and say: "On span, brother, you still will make it in this land."

blems were discussed at length, and as usual some very interesting facts were gathered. The subject of pollution was mentioned. ## Titans had 7-13 season Tech sectional champions despite 'dismal' campaign

Local observers say Ali will win

If the local sportsman has his way, Muhammad Ali will not only whip Joe Frazier Monday night, but do it by a knockout before the final bell.

Despite the odds favoring Frazier 11-10, a sampling of 13 sports fans, representing a cross section of the community, of course, predicted that the former champion will beat Frazier.

Of the 13, nine picked Ali. The sampling was taken by Kid Edwards, ex-ring great now living in Indianapolis but who never misses a fight.

Among those picking Ali were:

C. Chaney, a former local heavyweight, TKO; Sea Ferguson, 4 rounds, TKO; El

There were no smiles on the Tech campus at the turn of the year as the Eastsiders had lost to such teams as Warren Central, Southport, New Albany, Anderson, Ben Davis, and Attucks before winning their first game against Madison Heights.

But this week smiles are all over the campus as the Titans turned spoiler Saturday night and sumped heavily favored Washington for its first sectional title since 1967.

Tech, with a 7-13 record, had been ruled a possibility, but not a likely choice to win the Hinkle Fieldhouse title with the likes of Shortridge, Washington, and Attucks around, but the Johnson boys (Arthur and Bruce) didn't read the papers.

Arthur Johnson, 6-foot-6, boardman for the Titans, played perhaps his best game of the season, hitting 23 points pulling down 12 rebounds, collecting two thefts and two blocked shots.

Bruce Johnson, Titan guard who was injured earlier in the season, scored 14 points despite relatively poor shooting (7 of 23) but handed out six assists to Arthur Johnson.

Washington, with big 6-6 junior Jim Harris and 6-3 senior Steve Stanfield, and guard Abner Nibbs paying the way, led at the first-quarter stop, 19-13, and it looked like another Washington romp.

But Coach Cline's fired-up crew didn't fold under the Continental pressure and trailed only 31-29 at halftime. With Nibbs, the tourney's leading scorer, firing 'em in, Washington which defeated Attucks 65-61 Friday night, stretched their lead to 49-44 at the three-quarter stop. Tech led once in the third, 33-31 with 6:41 remaining.

The fourth period told the story as Tech stormed back behind the performances of 6-5 Bob Powell and Bruce Johnson and were behind 55-54 with 4:10 remaining in the contest.

Finally, Paul Wilson was fouled with :01 remaining and the score tied at 58-all and Wilson canned them both and the Titans, considered one of the "worst" teams in the city two months ago, emerged the "best."

Tech will now meet Brownburg in the second contest Saturday afternoon in the regional.

Cathedral walked with its first sectional title at Southport, running away from Manual, 75-48, behind John Wise's 23 points (including 15 rebounds).

The Irish, runnersup to Attucks in 1961 and runnersup for the city title this year, won it at the free throw stripe where they converted 35 of 44 free tosses.

Manuel, hitting only 17 of 59 from the floor, jumped into a 10-9 lead after one quarter, but the rest of the way it was the Irish as Coach Tom O'Brian's outfit held leads of 28-25 and 49-39.

Steve Willis counted 19 as the tourney's leading scorer, while David Goodard and Joe Jansen contributed 11 each. Manual was led by Fred Hutton with 16 markers.

Cathedral will clash with Northwest in the first contest Saturday afternoon at Hinkle.

Northwest's 6-4 Lewis Burns "burned" the nets for 35 big points to push his team to a 64-60 win over Speedway for its second straight sectional title.

The Pioneer center connected on 15 of 22 from the field and 5 of 12 from the charity stripe and Northwest had to battle all the way to escape gully speedway.

Black Pulitzer winner's poem set for fight

Miss Gwendolyn Brooks, first black American to win a Pulitzer prize and one of the country's most distinguished poets, has been commissioned to write a poem for the Muhammad Ali-Joe Frazier fight program, it was announced this week by Fred Dale for the "Fight of the Champions."

Titled "Black Steel," the poem is a tribute to the historic significance of the fight of the century. It will be included in the March 8 fight program.

"Miss Brooks' distinguished accomplishments are a monument to a growing black legacy of excellence already represented by both Joe Frazier and Muhammad Ali," said Chick Stone, press secretary for the fight.

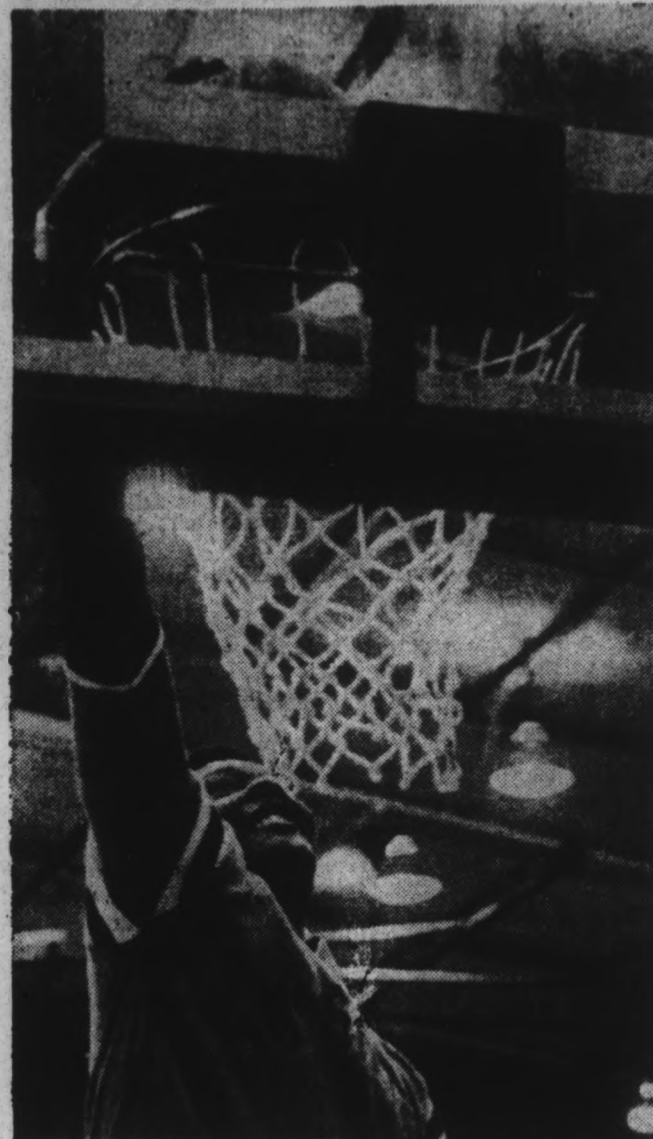

"In the selection of Miss Brooks, the black experience is authenticated and the extended black family is united," said Stone.

A two-time winner of Guggenheim Fellowships for creative writing in 1946 and 47, Miss Brooks has published six volumes of poetry and a novel. In 1950, she was awarded the Pulitzer prize for "Annie Allen," a collection of poems about Chicago black life.

In 1968, Miss Brooks was named Poet Laureate for the state of Illinois. She had been a professor at Northwestern Illinois State College, Columbia College in Chicago, and Elmhurst College.

Married to Henry Blakely, she is the mother of two children, Nora and Henry Jr. Miss Brooks' autobiography and future works will be published by Broadside Press of Detroit, one of the country's major black publishing houses.

HOUSTON -- Joe Louis said this week Muhammad Ali's best chance of beating Joe Frazier would be to knock him out in the first five rounds of their March 8 fight in New York.

Kentucky State cage play 'a happening'

FRANKFORT, Ky. -- You are to be forgiven if you haven't heard of Kentucky State College's basketball team. Only last spring neither had Adolph Rupp, the crusty old master coach at the University of Kentucky.

On his team bus, en route to a game, Rupp was told, "Kentucky State won the national championship last night."

"What?" Rupp asked.

"Kentucky State won the NAIA championship," the instructor said.

"Where in the hell," Rupp asked, "is Kentucky State?" At Frankfort, Ky., the state capital, maybe 30 miles from Rupp's home base of Lexington in the heart of the Bluegrass Country. But it is not enough to place Kentucky State geographically. Nor is it enough to place it in basketball's hierarchy: Champions of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics, a collegial division organization which has produced such household sports names as Willis Reed and Buck Buchanan.

To understand Kentucky State basketball, you must come at it another way. It is a happening, brother. The students begin by singing the Black National Anthem. They wind up dancing arm-in-arm around a bell at center court.

In between, they throw in rhythm-and-blues, hard rock, spiritual singing and sudden bursts of dancing in the aisles as if they only then had been converted to faith: Basketball as it's played at Kentucky State College.

It is played very well. The professional scouts will tell you that. In fact, they will tell you these things about Elmore Smith, the 7-foot center for Kentucky State: "He's the best big man in the country," said Jerry Colangelo, general manager of the Phoenix Suns.

"Artis Gilmore may be ahead of Smith now, but in two years--there's no telling how good Smith will be," said John Kresse, an assistant coach of the New York Knicks.

Smith's coach, Lucius Mitchell, boggles the mind when he talks of the 250-pound giant who never played basketball until his senior year in a Macon, Ga., high school. ("He was embarrassed by his height," Mitchell said.)

"Elmore is a combination of Lew Alcindor and Bill Russell," Mitchell said. "He's worth $2-million to the pros right now."

Those are strong words, coach.

"Certainly they're strong," Mitchell said. "But Smith can get there. He has the tools." While keeping Kentucky State ranked in the top five in all college-division polls this season, Smith has averaged just under 30 points and 20 rebounds a game. When Kresse saw him, Smith had 38 points, 34 rebounds and blocked 15 shots. "He's a menace," Kresse said.

If the pros consider him a "menace," the students who jam State's 2,900-seat gymnasium know him as "The Big E." His high-scoring teammate, 6-6 William Graham, is "The Bird."

It is a lesson in colorful language, then, to attend a Kentucky State game. No sooner does the public address announcer finish -- "Beautiful! 'E' gets two easy ones!" -- then the students start up something that begins as a basketball cheer but winds up as a spiritual of sorts.

"Fight on and win this game. If we never ever see you again, we're going, shonuf, to remember this game." Possibly even Adolph Rupp will remember Kentucky State now. Because the other day Lucas Mitchell said, "We could play with any team in the country." That includes neighbors 30 miles away.

psychological tactics not getting to Frazier

Muhammad Ali, long acknowledged as the master of boxing psychological warfare, may be meeting his match in Joe Frazier.

With their heavyweight title showdown fight in Madison Square Garden, March 8, drawing closer, Ali is continuing his efforts to upset Frazier by sounding off in every direction and disparaging his rival.

Thus far, however, there is no sign that Ali's psychological tactics are getting under Frazier's skin.

Welfare abuse?

Mayor Richard G. Lugar has suggested that the current welfare situation which he termed a "lighting rod for community discontent" be looked into through private sources.

However, we take issue with the mayor's discription of the proposed investigative body. Mayor Lugar suggested the formation of a "blue-ribbon" committee to deal with the welfare problem.

The time has long since passed when only the so-called "blue ribbon" segment of our community is called upon to deal with the affairs of the poor and the indigent-leaving them with little or no effective voice in the decision-making processes which affect their every day lives.

It also is no secret that welfare has become the explosive issue it is today because welfare problems have been exploited by certain segments for selfish or other unknown reasons. Some have even suggested that women have increasingly large families solely to increase the size of their ADC check.

To suggest that abuses in the welfare system do not occur would be pure fallacy. But we believe that the genuine good which is derived from the welfare system far outweighs the relatively minor number of instances where the welfare program has been flagrantly exploited.

To be sure, there will be abuses in any program of this type. In a relatively minor number of instances, abuses have and will continue to occur—even in the halls of government.

... and none to black colleges

The inadequacy of the President's understanding of the crisis in higher education is dramatized by the special plight of the Negro colleges. Originally created as a courageous response to America's most shameful lapse in social justice, they are today the victims of social progress. After a century of lonely service to black students, these institutions now face, in addition to higher education's general fiscal crisis, a severe drain of their best talent as the cream of black students and faculty are attracted to the predominantly white universities.

The answer cannot be sought in any restriction of that brain drain. This would not only be discriminatory; it would also block the way to the ultimate goal of full academic integration. But it is nevertheless wrong, morally as well as practically, to overlook either their immediate fiscal crisis or the Negro colleges' continuing mission for hundreds of thousands of black students.

The just and sensible course, recommended recently by the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education but ignored by the President's message, calls for a dramatic increase in federal support, along with determined efforts to bring the Negro colleges into the academic mainstream. A few, very few, of these institutions are already of good quality, a few are probably too marginal to be saved; but the overwhelming majority can and must be qualitatively upgraded by means of effective federal subsidy along with continuing private support.

Despite the severity of the crisis in the black colleges, their extraordinary needs are merely a symptom of a deeper disarray and should therefore be viewed and treated in the context of the total higher education picture. The Carnegie Commission's original recommendations that extensive federal aid be provided simultaneously to needy students and to the college which admit them remains the most promising remedy for an ailing system. This is the prescription the President has evidently failed to understand.

The Black Athlete

Organized baseball recently took another step in making amends for having shut black players out of the national game until 1947. It's making room in the Baseball Hall of Fame for the greats who played in the all-black leagues before integration came to the big leagues.

So the way is now open for honoring such all-time greats as Satchel Paige, the first black player selected, Josh Gibson, and dozens of other black players who, if it were not for racial segregation, would be as well known as Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth. Baseball's action is welcome—and long overdue. Anyone who attends almost any kind of sporting competition these days can see the dominance achieved by black athletes. Can anyone in his right mind imagine a baseball, football, or basketball game without black players?

Of course, for a long time, some people were saying there were "no qualified blacks," just as some employers and labor leaders say today. But the fact is that there always have been blacks who were qualified or easily "qualified" in every single form of human endeavor. It's the opportunities that were missing, not the talent.

Sports helped blaze the trail, but there are still some areas in athletics where blacks are rare. There aren't any black quarterbacks in pro football, for example. Plenty of defensive backs and line men and runners, but not the number one man, the one who calls the plays and leads the team.

In part, this is a reflection of bias on the college level. College coaches may not be too anxious to put a black in the spotlight, and some bigoted players may object to taking orders from a black quarterback. So when you have a black player who can catch the ball as well as throw it, he becomes an end.

That may change soon. Karl Douglas, a black quarterback, was recently drafted by the Baltimore Colts, and he's determined to be the man who steps in when John Unitas retires. Whether he makes it or not, I think we'll be seeing a black quarterback in there before long—or know the reason why.

Black managers and coaches are rareties for the same reason that there are so few black quarterbacks—the residue of bias keeps blacks from command positions. When Bill Russell became the first black pro basketball coach, I thought we'd soon see other blacks in such positions, but it hasn't happened.

Outspoken black athletes like Johnny Sample and several white players have begun to tell it like it is in pro sports, and their stories include tales of prejudice and discrimination. A black player still has to be better than a white to make the roster. Stars have no problem, but it's the average player who is more likely to get bumped by an equally average white player simply because management may feel it's got enough blacks on the team.

The new militance among young blacks runs against a cultural and generational gap, too, especially in college sports. Last season, eight blacks boycotted football practice at Syracuse University and were suspended. A university investigation revealed unintentional, though pervasive, racism in the athletic program. A track coach at Rutgers was suspended for racial slurs.

Athletes make a significant part of their incomes from endorsements of commercial products, off-season jobs and speaking tours. Here, too, the black athlete gets the short end of it, while his white teammates cop most of the extras.

The sports world has a far better record than other areas of American life, but it is just too easy to complacently think that the struggle is over there. Some barriers are still up, but with the new spirit of pride and dignity worn by so many black athletes, and with some much-needed pressure from sports fans, these barriers will crumble and sports will live up to its potential to show the way for the rest of the society.

U.S. urged to triple aid to black colleges

ATLANTA, Georgia. — The Carnegie Commission on Higher Education last week called for a tripling of federal aid to black colleges and said the financially pressed schools must use the money to move in new directions.

The commission, established in 1967 by the Carnegie Foundation, said the money is essential if the colleges are to accommodate an expected 300,000 students, twice the current enrollment, by the year 2000.

The commission's recommendations are contained in a report, "From Isolation to Mainstream."

Dr. Clark Kerr, chairman of the commission and former president of the University of California at Berkeley, detailed the report at a news conference at the Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial Center in Atlanta.

Derr said the 105 black colleges now get $120 million in federal aid annually and should receive $360 million.

"The Negro colleges are a great national asset," Derr said. "The black colleges are the best places for under-

Lugar is not our boy

Locally, we have never had a mayor like him. He surpasses in sheer brilliance all of the chief executives of the Hoosier capitol in the memory of those who have been around for years and years. And he has the charisma which is an asset to any politician. His youthful face and his infectious smile tend to disarm the most suspicious.

But therein lies the danger. He has in common with confidence men the ability to appear other than what he really is. He, like the late and unlamented Benito Mussolini, who made the Italian trains run on time, has his accomplishments to offset the ruthlessness of his dictatorship. He has made of Indianapolis, the 10th city in size in the United States. At the same time he has emasculated the voice of the city's black and the city's poor. He has effectively given back to those who fled the city while keeping control of the economic machinery—the political machinery.

At a time when we so badly need to get together, he has endorsed policies which have served to make us more divided than at any time in our century. He has endeared himself to the Nixon-Agnew axis, which has done more to separate than any administration since that of Woodrow Wilson, in which we reached the peak of racial discrimination.

Mr. Nixon and Mr. Agnew, who did a great disservice to the American ideal of national unity and a classless society during the 1970 election campaign, have pointed the direction which Mr. Lugar has chosen to travel.

Neither Mr. Nixon nor Mr. Lugar created the divisions within our society along racial age and economic lines, but their actions to date have done more to keep them alive than the actions of any other national or city leaders in our country.

There seems to be no disagreement on the part of Dick Lugar with the opposition of Dick Nixon to busing to achieve racial integration. In fact, Our Lord Mayor has on more than one occasion thrown a monkey wrench in the plans of the Indianapolis Board of School Commissioners to relocate Crispus Attucks High School in obedience to a Federal Court order to do so. He has reportedly conferred with Mr. Jerris Leonard of the Justice Department to get the department to get him to let the Indianapolis schools off the hook. Since then he has refused to discuss the sale of city-owned land to the board as a site for the proposed new Attucks High School and has gone on record as opposed to the building of a new Attucks, period.

Mr. Lugar's puppet Sesquicentennial Celebration Committee has given only token representation to the role of black citizens either now or in the past. The placing of a sole black member of the 15-member sesquicentennial commission was insultingly token when the one Negro member was a petty employee of the Lugar administration.

The attempt last summer by the mayor to personally name the director of the Community Action Against Poverty without regard to the wishes of the CAAP Board did not demonstrate a belief in the capability of the black or the poor.

His recent firing of his personally selected head of the Model Cities program served to show the ruthlessness of the man. There are many people who were shocked at the firing of that particular director in the first place, but many of them were horrified at the coup de grace by which he dispatched one who had lost his favor.

Of course, the black champions of Richard Greene Lugar might point out that the good man has allowed our children to dance in the streets and he has persuaded the school city to open a few schools at night so that our children can play in them.

But he has done nothing to change or alter the residential pattern and he has not seen to it that adequate housing had been provided for the black and the poor.

He has not sent men to the moon while millions of Americans were crying for bread, but he has invited the mayor from half the earth to come to our megapolis and has busied himself with the preparations for that event and with his approaching campaign for re-election as our Lord Mayor that he has had little time for concern with some of the basic wants of his subjects.

The personable Mayor of Indianapolis might be Richard Nixon's boy. He certainly is not ours.

Bill pending in Congress would aid unemployed

WASHINGTON — A bill introduced in the Senate by Sen. Alan Cranston (D-Calif.) would help people who are out of work, or who have had to take a substantial cut in pay, meet the mortgage payments on their homes.

"I realize this measure will not relieve all the hardships faced by millions of unemployed and underemployed persons," Cranston said, "but I believe it is a good first step toward providing the type of built-in mechanisms that are essential to protect our fellow Americans in times of economic distress."

"Although the foreclosure rate has not yet shown signs of drastically increasing, an increase is inevitable unless some form of relief is provided," Cranston warned.

Cranston's bill would authorize $25 million fund to insure private loans to homeowners who are in danger of defaulting on their mortgage payments because they are victims of "adverse economic conditions" prevailing in an industry or area.

He noted that the month would be available immediately after his measure becomes law. Under terms of the bill homeowners relief would not have to wait for Congress to follow up with an appropriation because the money would be advanced from the general insurance fund of the Federal Housing Administration.

Cranston would make anyone eligible for a loan who has lost his job and is either still out of work or has taken a temporary position that pays less than half what he was making before. But his temporary job must not pay him more than $10,000 a year.

The borrower must also need the loan to avoid a foreclosure on his home, which must be a single-family dwelling, "situated in an area of persistent or substantial underemployment as determined by the Secretary of Labor."

He could borrow enough money to meet mortgage payments for a year, but his original mortgage must not exceed $33,000.

Warning against increased home foreclosures unless preventive steps are taken, Cranston pointed out that in Seattle, where substantial unemployment has occurred due to cut backs in the aerospace industry, there were only 189 foreclosures on FHA guaranteed mortgages in 1969. But for the period ending October 1970, foreclosures had soared to 1,034 — almost a six-fold increase for those 10 months alone.

"Long periods of unemployment create hardships of varying degrees for the unemployed person and his family. I believe that there should be a built-in mechanism to insure a smooth transition between jobs for those who are displaced because of changes in the government's monetary or budgetary policies."

Cranston noted that "one of the major problems facing the average middle income skilled or professional worker who becomes unemployed is his inability to meet his mortgage payments."

Jerry Butler show with top stars at Murat Sat., March 6

"How cool can you get?" someone once remarked about Jerry Butler (the man who comes to the Murat Temple Saturday, March 6 for 2 shows - with a star-studded show) in his early days before he became a top singing star. Apparently in Jerry's case, "real cool", since his fans later nicknamed him "The Ice Man"... a title that has stuck with him throughout his career.

Coming to town with Jerry Butler will be such celebrated stars as The Main Ingredients (I'm So Proud); Barbara and the Uniques (There He Goes Again) and the Spinners swinging out with "It's a Shame."

Jerry Butler and the Impressions made their first record, "For Your Precious Love" (which was written by Jerry) skyrocketed the group to national prominence. The song received the BMI certificate of Award as being one of the top ten best sellers in the country.

Jerry later broke with the group and became a single act... recording such hits as "He Will Break Your Heart," "Make It Easy on Yourself," a duet "Moon River," all of which received BMI Awards. Composing a great deal of his own material, he soon began writing for other artists such as Jackie Wilson, Count Basie and Otis Redding. At present Jerry has several of his own publishing companies as well as various other business interests.

Tickets for this great show are now on sale at locations near you. Be sure and get yours TODAY. The show is another Operation Breadbasket special project... and invites you to participate.

ROCK 'n' ROLL MUSIC

COMPUTER MUSIC is now with us, whether we are ready for it or not, for no better reason than computers and musicians both exist since the 1950's, computers have been used experimentally for composing and performing music.

EDITOR'S NOTE:... Recently, we had the pleasure to receive a letter from one of our fans. The letter pertained to an article which appeared in the column some weeks ago. The article in part, stated that many of the so-called Sepia Immediate Supervisors in public institutions and other places of employment here were NOT QUALIFIED to lead workers under them. Also that there were many violations of the worker's civil rights which went un-noticed by the proper authorities or due to the lack of the employees speaking up for themselves.

The contents of the letter reads as follows: "I never miss your column in the Recorder. You really hit the nail on the head with regards, to the Sepia Supervisors in the Feb. 6, issue. I hope, you will forgive me for not signing my name. I still have a few more working years left.

I've worked in many hotels in Naptown and you'd be surprised at what a worker has to go through with, just to stay on the job. If you try to do a GOOD job it seems you're trying to take over the Super's job, and you are treated like a 'leper.' That's one reason why, people just give up and quit jobs they really want to stay on.

I hope that someday, someone will let the top-bosses know the plight of the lonely over-keeper. Keep up, your good work and good luck to you." FIGHTS IN PUBLIC BISTROS:... We have often heard these remarks many times from the taverns, lounges and club patrons: "I Won't Go There Any more Because They Fight Too Much." We might say, that the owner-managers are not the blame for such goings-on in their establishments.

Some 'Brothers,' will wall anywhere especially, if they have 'live refreshments' or the other 'thing' in them. Many of the patrons who attend some to the best and older gay spots in the city really do battle sometimes and the session is hushed-up. However, let a new bistro open up and have one mis-understanding among the guests then the rumors spread like wild-fire... "They Fight Too Much." Don't think too hard about these places in question, because the managements are doing their best in maintaining good order at all times... Believe Me!

Some composers have evolved their ideas with the use of the computer, turning performance over to live performers or to the spectrum of electronic instruments available today.

To record computer music, the composer working with one of several existing sound-synthesis programs, sophisticated out-growths of a Bell Labs system called Music IV, puts his basic ideas into a digital computer, after which the information thus processed is converted to analog form on another computer, which transforms the digital data directly into sound images on tape by recording continuous fluctuations in magnetism.

No actual instruments a used but more importantly this system does away with electronic sound generators such as filters, ring modulators and even the newest synthesizing machines... The most successful work on two recent records are: Computer Music, Nonesuch H-71245, and Earth's Magnetic Field, Nonesuch H-71250.

ROCK 'n' ROLL MUSIC had its beginning in July, 1955. It started an avalanche of youth music that never has stopped.

'Rock,' began as a creative outburst, imaginative and exciting. A combination of Country and Western, Blues and Soul Music, it simply roared with energy from 1955 through 1964. Entertainers like Chuck Berry, Little Richard, Elvis Presley and Jerry Lee Lewis created a new music devoted to the principles of unashamed excitement and danceability.

Starting in 1964, the Beatles arrived and created what we now call - "Progressive Rock." The current 'thing' seems much the same as it was before the Beatles arrived. Maybe, in a year or two there will be another Beatles or Chuck Berry, unassuming, exciting and aimed at the 12-to-18 year-old audience.

The Column, leaves these lines to live by: (1) Be thankful for what you have. Do not complain because things aren't better. They could be worse. (2) Be helpful, but never intrude on others. (3) Suggest don't boss. (4) Don't be a critic, but take criticism without resentment. (5) Never say an unkind thing - even if it's true. (6) Cultivate a sense of humor and use it when things go wrong. Laughter shrinks catastrophe and helps take the sting out of irritation... (B.W.)

Black Panther defended by Nichols, Darrell and Darrell on Bold Ones

George Standord Brown, Charles Lampkin and Gloria Calomee are the guest-stars in "Panther in a Cage," drama of a Black Panther who is tried for the murder of a plainclothesman, on NBC Television Network's "The Bold Ones" Sunday, March 14 (10-11 p.m. NYT, in color; repeat Oct. 18, 1970).

Nichols, Darrell (Burlives, Joseph Campanella and James Farentino) are retained by Ralph Miller (Lampkin), an Establishment personnel manager, to defend his son, Kenneth (Brown), Walt Nichols and Brian Darrell (Campanella) handle the defense while Neil Darrell (Farentino) investigates Panther headquarters. Neil queries Kenneth's girlfriend, Miriam Wilson (Miss Calomee) and hears her version of St. Wilkerson's (Alan Baxter) death. During the trial, Kenneth castigates the Establishment and major fixture on the world tennis circuit.

South Africa has granted visas to Australian aborigine Evonne Goolagong and Japanese girl Kazuko Swamatsu, to play in the championships.

Official sources verified that Ashe considered persona non grata because of his alleged political activities. Ashe name was the second on a list of 33 American Negro sportsmen who signed a petition for the exclusion of South Africa from the Olympic Games that was presented to the United Nations Feb. 21, 1968, the sources pointed out.

the third period as the score stood 43-39 at the end.

The fourth period was close all the way as Northwest went ahead 45-44 with 6:08 remaining. Speedway went ahead 46-45 but Jim Fowler hit with 4:56 remaining and it was Northwest, 49-48. Burns hit shortly thereafter and the Pioneers went into a 51-48 lead.

However, Speedway clawed and fought to a 52-51 lead with about two minutes remaining in the contest. Northwest took the lead at 61-60 with a minute left and never lost it again.

The Pioneer's meeting with Cathedral should be a thriller. The Irish defeated Northwest 58-54 in the city tourney.

They added that although Ashe had said he was interested solely in playing tennis, during a recent coaching trip to Zambia (formerly Northern Rhodesia) last October, he was quoted as saying that he "would always be more concerned about black liberation movements than about tennis."

While declining to say whether he would apply again in the future, Ashe said in New York, "Maybe it's over for me but to South Africa, I say, there will be more after me and more after them."

Owen Williams, director of the South African Open championships, said in Johannesburg he was "very, very disappointed" to hear of Ashe's visa refusal.

and with four professional fights under his belt, "stood up" to all in public for the first time.

The incident occurred when All received the "Fighter of the Year" award at the annual, dinner of the Boxing Writers Association at the Waldorf-Astoria in 1965. Frazier was introduced at the dinner and was called to the dais by All.

"You're small," said the 6-foot-3 All, looking down at the 5-11 Frazier.

Frazier grinned and said nothing.

"You're gonna grow up and have to stand in line with the other contenders," All went on. "You're gonna have to wait your turn."

"I can wait," replied Frazier.

The "wait" is almost over now and Frazier has become the target of All's psychological warfare. All has turned the full force of his powerful personality against Frazier in hopes of upsetting him. All, a master at the technique, wants to throw Frazier off-stride as he has done to many previous opponents.

All, then known as Cassius Clay, displayed his psychological warfare talents right from the start of his career. He freely predicted what round he would knock out his opponents in, "composed" limelicks which disparaged his opponents and told one and all, "I am the greatest."

All's psychological warfare tactics reached their zenith just before his heavyweight title bout with Sonny Liston, Feb. 25, 1964, in Miami Beach. Liston was a big favorite -- as much as seven to one in some quarters -- and was regarded as almost unbeatable.

All dubbed Liston "The Big Ugly Bear" and announced that he would "flit like a butterfly and sting like a bee" when he got Sonny into the ring. His public outbursts became so frequent that some experts thought he was putting up a front.

The outbursts reached a climax at the ageroun weigh-in ceremony when some commission doctors and representatives thought All had become so nervous that he might not even show up for the bout -- and, if he did, would be kayoed in short order by Liston.

As it turned out, All had been merely putting on a show designed to upset Liston and hype the gate because he beat Liston in the seventh round and became the heavyweight champion of the world.

All continued the tactics against succeeding opponents including Floyd Patterson, George Chuvalo, Henry Cooper, Ernie Terrell, Zora Foley and Oscar Bonavena. Some were more upset than others but it is generally agreed that All's tactics had some effect on them all.

Now All is giving Frazier all he's got in the way of psychological warfare and getting no reaction at all.

Will it turn out that Frazier has been out-psyching the mat has been out-psyching the master of boxing psychological warfare all along?

The answer will come Monday night in the Garden ring in front of two million fans watching the "showdown" on closed circuit television.

By CLEONA SCOTT

Mrs. Alberta K. Stevenson was chosen "Sister of the Year" and was presented a plaque at the meeting of Zeta Zeta Omega Chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority at their Founders Day program in the home of Mrs. Ira Neal, 827 Prosperity Ave.

Other Sorors present: Miss Charlene Wilson, Miss C. Lawrence, Mrs. Irene Saucer, Mrs. Ira Neal, Mrs. Wylene Morse, Mrs. Mattie Miller, Mrs. Ann Jones, Mrs. Joan Finch, Mrs. Marye M. Brown, Mrs. Lillian Bell, Miss Edith Mitchell, Mrs. Mary Sherer, and Mrs. Allouise J. Storer, president.

A group of 16 Negro men, many of them in college, are organizing a Saturday program to provide supervised activities for inter-city boys from fifth to eighth grade. Called the Griffins, the group is planning sports programs, field trips to industries, the St. Louis Zoo, the airport and similar places; fishing and camping trips and talks by businessmen, ministers, professional athletes and high school coaches. The Recreation Commission will donate use of Lincoln School gymnasium two Saturdays each month. Otherwise the Griffins will have to pay $25 each Saturday they use the building.

President of the group is Robert Esters, a Bucyrus-Erie Co. employee who is also attending the University of Evansville. Vice president is Jim Tyus, assistant director of Carver Community Center and a student at Indiana State University Evansville. One of the major goals of the Griffins is to play a "big brother" role for Negro children who do not have a father in their home. Each Griffin will pay $5 monthly dues to help operate the program. Tyus said the group has attracted about 60 youngsters on three Saturday mornings. Besides the Saturday program the Griffins plan to help the boys with homework, channel their energies into acceptable means of self-expression and expose them to activities normally denied inner-city children.

DR. A. S. WILLIAMS SEEKS NOMINATION FOR MAYOR OF GARY

GARY, -- Thirty candidates filed for Lake County, city and town elective offices at Crown Point (the county seat) on the first day of filing last week. Dr. Alexander S. Williams, Gary, Lake County coroner was one of the early candidates filing. He will seek the Democratic nomination for Mayor of the City of Gary. Other candidates seeking the Democratic nomination for Mayor of Gary included are John Armenta and Louis B. Watts.

The Annual "Back Home Hour" musical and Fellowship Drive was held at Nazareth Baptist Church recently, under the successful guidance of the organizer and director Mrs. Thelma Hopkins. A spiritual program in which over $3,000 was reported. Dr. Bransford Utley is the pastor of the church.

Because of the need of training education in our churches the pastor, Dr. Bransford Utley along with the Director of Christian Education, Mr. Gentry Francis have set up a board of workers, called the Nazareth Baptist Board of Christian Education to help train in each field of Christian training in the church. The board consists of twelve members elected every two years. This course includes studies in Bible, Doctrines, Evangelism, school leadership and administration. This course was to run for six weeks but owing to weather conditions were reluctant to carry on for another two weeks. The classes have been very effective and everyone seemed to have learned something. We are hoping we might continue the course further.

Robert Anderson, 515 Bedford Ave., is home on leave from the Army after experiencing some exciting adventures. He reports having escaped death several times by just miracles. Friendships form quickly in the service, he reports. The local Seabee has had a narrow escape with death twice and it has always been his buddies who fell. Anderson attended Stanley Hall and Bosse High School before entering the Army. He and his wife Pauline have two children, Lisa 3, and Robert Jr., born just before Anderson left for Vietnam. The past Saturday more than 100 relatives from around the Tri-State crowded in the home of Robert's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anderson at 515 S. Bedford Ave. it was a much happier occasion than his visit to Mobile to attend the funeral rites of one of his buddies. In two weeks he will be returning to Vietnam.

Your professional hairdresser knows the answer...

How do you keep a 'Fro free from problems?

An "afro" or "natural" looks best when every strand of hair stands independently full and attractively healthy. But, kinky or frizzy hair matts and tangles easily and can break off in everyday combing. Because professional hairdressers realize this most of them use Clairol condition—The Beauty Prescription for Troubled Hair... as well as Clairol Hair-So-New, the no rinse creme rinse for general softening.

They know condition leaves dry hair shiny and plump. What's more, it silken and helps mend split ends. Hair is left stronger to withstand even chemical straighteners and the picking method of combing an "afro." A condition treatment only takes a few minutes. And you can feel the difference in your hair right away.

For easy combing most professional hairdressers soften the hair first with a product like Hair-So-New. It temporarily relaxes hair so tangles and snarls quickly go away and scalp feels soothed. Combing is easy... and fewer ends are broken.

When you wear your hair in a "natural," you'll want it to look beautiful. The more beautiful it is, the better it expresses your proud distinction. But, whether you straightened, see your professional hairdresser about Clairol condition... so glad you did.

STATION WTLC CITED: As Radio Station WTLC observes its third anniversary of service to the black community, the station has been presented with one of the 10 Abe Lincoln Awards given by the Southern Baptist Radio and Television Commission. WTLC was the only black-oriented station in the nation nominated for the public service award. General Manager Thomas Mathis (left) was presented the award for pioneering the "green power" approach to race relations, by providing thousands of dollars worth of free advertising to help establish black businesses and for consistently encouraging the training and hiring of black employees. WTLC's average monthly amount of free public advertising exceeds $16,000. The "Partners in Progress" program was specifically singled out by the commission as the basis for the award.

Mental retardation linked to poor nutrition, survey says

WASHINGTON, D.C.--President Nixon's Committee on Mental Health Retardation in its recent report of last week observed that the research is still incomplete, there is "overwhelming" evidence that inadequate and improper nutrition "are major causes of impaired human development."

"...The evidence that poor nutrition in mother and child causes mental retardation is so overwhelming that it is time to cease quibbling over incomplete—as yet research on the permanency of poor nutrition's effect on human beings..."

"It is time... and past time... to get on with the essential work of preventing a cause of mental retardation that is both so extensive and so positive."

Lt. R. Harris, USNR, new recruiting official in city

LT. (j.g.) ROBT. L. HARRIS

Lt. (j.g.) Robert L. Harris, USNR, has been assigned to the Navy's Main Recruiting Station in the City of Indianapolis as the Minority Recruiting Effort Advisor for Central Indiana.

His presence here represents part of the Navy's special efforts to recruit qualified members of ethnic and racial minority groups for the U. S. Naval service. He will be active in recruiting individuals for both enlisted and officer programs.

Lt. Harris is a graduate of Cleveland, Ohio schools and received his B. A. degree in economics from Otterbein College, Westerville, Ohio. After graduation he enlisted in the Navy and was accepted for Naval Officer Candidate School.

He was commissioned an Ensign in the U. S. Naval Reserve in July 1969. He attended Naval Justice School and was assigned to the nucleus precommissioning crew of the USS Nashville where he served as the administrative assistant and legal adviser. During his eighteen month tour on the Nashville, Mr. Harris assisted in its commissioning, crossed the equator, and passed through the Panama Canal meaning in Naval terms that he is a plank-owner, shellback, and member of the Order of the Locks respectively. Lieutenant (junior grade) Harris, while aboard USS, participated in amphibious assault exercises in Cuba and made goodwill visits to Mexico, Puerto Rico and Nova Scotia.

able to eradicate in the United States," the reporter noted. "Further," in this country, poor nutrition is almost completely confined to the poor... and... an estimated 20 million Americans do not and cannot get enough food of the right kind."

According to the report, poor nourishment of an expectant mother during pregnancy, or of a baby after birth "can result in permanent and irretrievable retardation" of the child's mental capacity, no matter how well fed he may be later in life," the committee reported.

Again most harmful to the embryonic or infant human brain is a lack of vitamins and proteins, a common characteristic of the diets of poor families.

Otherwise, "chronic food deprivation spanning more than one generation has been found to produce increasingly serious effects in reduction of learning ability." In other words, the longer a family lives in poverty, the more likely its children are to enter the world hopelessly handicapped.

The report negates the widely held idea that low-income families squander their food budgets on junk foods because "they cannot recognize or will not buy nutritionally valuable food. The survey appeared to indicate that poor families generally 'get more calories and nutrients per food dollar spent than do some higher income families."

"Upward of 25,000,000 American live on incomes of less than $3,300 a year for a family of four, and half of these people... including some 5 million children... live in households having an annual income of $2,200 or less, according to the survey."

To maintain an adequate diet, such families would have to spend over half of their family income on food. Almost no one realistically can budget so large a part of income for food and the actual result in the lives of the hard-core poor is an endemic semistarvation," according to the report.

Although poor nourishment may be the single most important cause of mental retardation, the report emphasized that some 27 metabolic disorders transmissible from mother to child can lead to mental retardation.

More black lawyers seen as key to power breakthrough

ANN ARBOR, Mich.--The American legal profession which has been almost exclusively "white" throughout history, could become a vehicle for blacks to assume positions of power and responsibility, according to a University of Michigan professor.

Over the past few years, said Prof. Harry T. Edwards, black enrollment has increased substantially at the nation's leading law schools. "This is an exciting development, he said, because it means a significant number of blacks will begin to assume leadership roles throughout society."

Noting that there has always been a sizable representation of lawyers among federal, state and local officials, Edwards said:

"Ever since the Constitutional Convention, lawyers—in disproportionately large numbers—have been running this nation. But, as we all know, most of these lawyers have been white."

Edwards, who is black, directed his remarks at minority group students attending a recent Midwest minority pre-law conference at Toledo, Ohio. The conference, which was sponsored jointly by the U-M and University of Toledo, being conducted across the country to help increase minority enrollment at participating law schools.

Edwards said black students could "help alter the course of American history" by pressing for admission at leading law schools and preparing to "assume positions of power and responsibility within the legal profession."

The U-M professor said the need for more black lawyers is illustrated by the fact that of the nearly 300,000 lawyers in the nation today, less than 4,000 are black.

Similarly, Edwards cited a critical under-representation of blacks in government posts where law training is considered an asset.

He gave these examples: At the federal level (before the recent elections), only nine of 435 congressmen were black, and there was only one black among 100 senators.

There are only 50 black mayors in the United States and only 228 black law enforcement administrators.

There are only 214 black judges in the nation. Edwards said it was wrong to assume that "legal aid" work is the only area needing more black lawyers. He said there is also a demand for more blacks in the fields of corporate, tax and labor law and in governmental regulatory agencies.

"Each black man entering the so-called 'establishment' practice of law helps to change the complexion, design and philosophy of that 'establishment,'" he said.

as "new" revenue in the plan submitted to Congress consists of $4 billion in decreases from existing programs and $1 million in actual additional appropriations.

Cities nationally would receive 26 per cent more federal assistance under revenue - sharing than they are receiving under existing programs.

Revenue sharing wouldn't affect any previous commitments such as the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development's recent agreement with Gary.

Nixon's plan basically is to appropriate a certain amount of money simply to distribute to the states and cities to use as they wish.

Now units of government must apply and qualify under specific programs - with strings attached - to receive any more.

Hatcher has expressed concern the $5 billion in "new" money under the program isn't anywhere near enough.

And he has said he feared there will be little left to devote to problems of the city by the time the funds are filtered through state governments.

The mayor was informed of legislation in a six-bill package related to revenue-sharing that asks Congress to guarantee a percentage of money will pass through the cities.

The administration said it settled on its revenue - sharing proposal only after discarding other suggestions, including federal tax credits to states with income taxes, lowering federal taxes, increasing categorical programs and federalizing welfare.

age family.

Her husband's insurance policy will cover some of the cost for the first year, but it is believed that some $8,000 to $10,000, over and above insurance, will be needed.

The Recorder urges its readers, friends and the community - either as individuals or through organizations to contribute to the Mary Jewell Artificial Kidney Fund. Contributions may be sent to the fund in care of The Recorder, 518-20 Indiana Avenue, Indianapolis, Indiana 46202. Checks should be made payable to the Methodist Hospital Foundation.

Use of the artificial kidney is simply a means of removing from the system - the blood stream - impurities. In Mrs. Jewell's case, it was necessary for medical reasons, to remove her kidneys.

When Mary has completed her training and has an artificial kidney in her home, she will be fully capable of operating it, disassembling and reassembling it, and will know exactly what to do in case any difficulty arises.

She learned of her kidney ailment early last fall. She underwent surgery. While at Methodist Hospital, she was evaluated by Dr. George Applegate, a project director of the artificial kidney unit, who decided that she was a feasible candidate for the hospital's home dialysis program, a program which not only would keep her alive, but rehabilitate her to continue the role of wife, mother, and homemaker.

Her husband, Jim, a machinist at the Allison Division of General Motors, serves as her "back up" - also fully trained in the use of the machine and capable of providing assistance when needed.

Mrs. Jewell and her family needs help. You can have the satisfaction in knowing you did your share. Give to the Mary Jewell Artificial Kidney Fund today! (Clip coupon below and send with contribution.)

in an agonizing national crisis because a complex of profound problems has intersected in an explosive mixture.

He said the real cost lies ahead but that America's inability to arrange an order of priorities that promises solutions that are decent and just is unique.

"We should not be said, therefore, that black America is rebelling; this was not only inevitable, but eminently desirable. Without this magnificent ferment among black Americans the old evasions and procrastinations would have continued indefinitely. Black people have slammed the door shut on a past of deadening passivity."

Holding the crowd of more than 300 at strict attention, the youthful speaker who is also assistant legal counsel for NAREB, Inc., stated that the goal of equality appears not as a fixed point in the future, but as a receding point never to be reached.

"Still," he continued, "when doubts emerge, we can remember that only yesterday we were not only grossly exploited, but negated as human beings."

He told his audience that it is necessary to refute the idea that the dominant ideology in our country even today is freedom and equality while racism is just an "occasional departure from the normal on the part of a few bigoted extremists."

The youthful speaker charged that "America is still poisoned by a racism that is as native to our soil as pine trees, sage brush and buffalo grass."

He informed his listeners that true justice and equality for black people would necessitate a re-ordering of national priorities.

"... A great deal of money is spent in this country every day for education, housing, freeways, war, national parks, liquor, cosmetics, advertising and a lot of other items," Michaux stated. "It is then the question of the allocation of money, which means the establishing of priorities."

He termed the Vietnam War an "immoral war that costs nearly 40 billion dollars annually... nearly ten times more than the amount committed to anti-poverty programs."

He then turned his attention toward "uprisings" among black people.

"America must change because 25,000,000 black citizens will no longer live supinely in a wretched past," he said. "They have left the valley of despair; they have found strength in struggle, and whether they live or die, they shall never crawl nor retreat again. Joined by our white allies, we must shake the prison walls until they fall."

Following Michaux's speech, Atty. Theodore Wilson installed newly-elected officers of the IREBA. They were: Albert R. Booth, president; James Buchanan III, vice-president; Mrs. Margaret L. Coleman, secretary; Mrs. Georgia H. Stewart, treasurer; Gordon K. Warren, ex-officio; Mrs. Bertha Grissom, financial secretary; and Mrs. Nellie W. Grant, assistant secretary.

Members of the board of directors are Mrs. Nellie Grant, Mrs. Julia Peeler, James S. Mullin, Don Butler, Mrs. Gloria Brown, Mrs. Betha Grissom, Lenyer Rankin, Mrs. Edna Johnson, Charles H. Smith, and Mrs. Iris Yateman and Walter Robertson. James Buchanan III is chairman of the board.

Grady B. Hinkle served as master of ceremonies for the evening, while Rev. J. Allen Parker gave the invocation. Dinner music was played by Professor John D. Oakley at the piano.

Delegates. So they are proposing to legalize such pacts by state law.

Under a bill they have drafted jointly, the contracts would incorporate an agreement on alimony, property settlements and legal fees, in case either party should decide three years was plenty.

Authors of the bill are Lena K. Kee, an attorney, and Hildagardis Boswell, an divorcee and law student.

Said Delegate Boswell: "I'm quite sure the church won't like this, but with the 18-year-old vote coming in, I think the youngsters will look upon this as a totally new approach toward marriage and a family situation."

"I'm a firm believer that you shouldn't be shackled to people whom you don't love. I'm also a firm believer in trying to adjust yourself as easily to marriage as possible and if it doesn't work out, getting out as amicably as you can."

"A lot of divorced men are reluctant to go into marriage for a second or third time because they feel they might lose too much," the delegate said.

president of the Indianapolis chapter of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, is a member of the Finance Committee along with Mr. Jones and Mr. Cummings.

"Black Expo '71" will be a total effort by the total black community, "Expo" officials declared. In some way, practically every black organization and institution in the state of Indiana will participate.

Plans for "Black Expo '71" are being developed by a Coordinating Committee, which includes the following persons:

Rev. F. Benjamin Davis, Rev. Boniface Hardin, H. C. Tribble, Willard B. Ransom, Holton Hayes, Mari Evans, Hoyt Diamond, Doris Parker, Jerry Harkness, Warren Armstrong, and Robert Williams. Stephen Scott, Bobby Bernard, Bea Moten, Andrew Ramsey, Sam Jones, George P. Stewart II, Wilma Green, Starling James, Dave Snyder, Theodore Boyd, and Donald Campbell.

"Black Expo '71" will be held in the Indiana State Fairgrounds Coliseum and the State Fairgrounds Exposition Center. Displays depicting various stages of black history and development in Indiana will be arranged at the Exposition Center. Black business, its development and the encouragement of future progress, will highlight the displays.

Progress will be the theme in every area of the exposition, which will present graphic displays and audio presentations in the broad areas of black history, culture, accomplishments, and entertainment. A black forum, designed to bring together spokesmen of the various opinion centers within the black national community, will be held during the exposition. "Black Expo" will present these national speakers in the forum design and give local residents interested in national affairs opportunities to exchange thoughts and ideas and debate issues with the speakers.

The culture section will depict black development through art, poetry, and with theatrical presentations. Two evenings of outstanding entertainment will be presented during "Black Expo '71". Top names in the entertainment world will perform at the State Coliseum June 19 and 20. Clarence Williams III, star of the television series "Mod Squad", and Jerry Butler, popular recording artist, have agreed to work with the Indianapolis project and to appear during the program.

Indianapolis businesses will be given an opportunity to display their products and services to the black community through the commercial display section of the exposition.

"Black voters, with good reason, are suspicious of any scheme which calls for sending federal funds into the states with no strings attached," Mr. Wilkins told the conferees.

"In the past, such funds have been used on projects and priorities for whites with little or nothing for Negroes. I am especially concerned because the attitude of the federal government, notably in the issue of housing in the suburbs, is against forcing any action to achieve equality."

A "peaceful" protest demonstration inside a fenced in exercise area which itself was inside the institution walls.

Inmates later reported that members of the group had laid on the ground inside the fenced inclosure to dramatize their grievances and had ignored orders from prison officials to return to their cells.

Without further provocation, according to signed statements by the inmates, guards pointed shotguns through the chain-link fence surrounding the enclosure and fired volley from shotguns loaded with double-O buckshot into the inmates as they lay sprawled on the ground.

Inmate spokesman emphasized that at no time during the demonstration were there any attempt to physically assault any of the prison personnel, or was there any attempt at escape.

James E. Durr, 20, of Gary, died instantly of a head wound. Another inmate, Robert Clancy, 21, Fort Wayne, died in Richmond State Hospital Feb. 14, 1970, where he had been confined as a result of his wounds. Forty-six inmates were injured in the incident.

Miller would not discuss the case but it was reported that two attorneys of the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division were believed to be in Indianapolis.

A Madison County Grand Jury investigated the incident, but reported that guards "acted in performance of their duty" in firing the shots and returned no indictments.

The association was critical of prison officials for what they claimed was administrative indifference to hostilities between white and black prisoners.

It was reported that at least five reformatory officials including Supt. George W. Phend, and about 30 inmates, had been subpoenaed before the jury. Miller did say, however, that the jury's investigation should be completed in about a week and "we should have some answers as to just what did happen then."

An overwhelming majority of the protesting inmates were black.

men walking free from hundreds of courtrooms across the country has not been lost on the criminal element," he said.

One of his principal targets was the Miranda vs. Arizona decision of 1966. On a 5-4 vote the court decreed confessions taken from suspects who were not advised of their right to counsel or to remain silent could not be used against them at a trial.

Last Wednesday the court punched a large hole into Miranda. Again the vote was 5-4 but Mr. Nixon's two appointees and three holdover dissenters were in the majority.

True, they said, it would be unconstitutional to convict a man with a confession taken illegally by police. However, they said, if the defendant takes the stand and tells the jury a different story than he told police the prosecutor can use the statement to impeach the defendant's credibility.

Now is the liberals' turn to howl. "It is monstrous that courts should aid or abet the lawbreaking police officer," said Justice William Brennan Jr.

"This goes far toward undoing much of the progress made in confirming police methods to the Constitution," Brennan said. "I dissent."

The same day, the court declared states may require candidates for the bar to swear their loyalty to the U.S. government. One more vote and prosecutive lawyers could have been compelled to list all the organizations to which they belonged or change being barred from practice.

The greatest single force in the court's rightward shift is the implacable conservatism of Burger and Blackman.

In 47 decisions this term the two Nixon appointees have been on the same side 45 times. Their two votes often have carried the day.

And while it is not too early to discern a trend, the term has four long months to run. A large number of big issues remain, among them school-busing to achieve racial balance, death penalty procedures and the status of conscientious objectors to the Vietnam war.
